

ECUADOR

NATIONAL ADAPTATION PLAN (NAP) APPROACH:

A participatory, iterative, and sectoral approach aiming at reaching effective gender-responsive management of climate adaptation

Ecuador's NAP process was a collaborative effort led by the Ministry of Environment, Water, and Ecological Transition. Over the course of 4 years, more than 2,000 stakeholders from various sectors engaged in the process with the goal of developing a comprehensive strategy that integrates adaptation into territorial planning and development at both national and local levels. Developed with support from the United Nations Development Program and the Green Climate Fund, the resulting NAP document covers the 2023–2027 period with a clear vision of achieving climate justice and protecting ecosystems and livelihoods.
